

Foundations of University Teaching – Intensive Mode

Dr Carol Bowie (Coordinator)

If you are a new full-time or contract member of academic staff, and have little or no teaching experience in higher education, you are required by the University to complete this intensive two-day workshop series. It provides an opportunity for you to become acquainted with the University's strategic learning and teaching priorities and to explore a range of practical strategies for enhancing your classroom practice and curriculum design. It also enables you to network with colleagues and learn from fellow academic staff members. The GIHE offers this two-day, intensive mode program twice each year. Sessions run from 9.30am – 4.00pm. An outline of the program is provided below.
