

The Violence Research And Prevention Program

Current Research on Stalking Seminar

Wednesday 18 November 2009

Stalking is a crime, and anyone can be a victim. Please join us to hear from a range of researchers undertaking important research on stalking.

Keynote Speakers

Dr Susan Dennison, School of Criminology and Criminal Justice, Griffith University
Great expectations: Balancing the scope of stalking laws and the needs of victims

Nicola Cheyne, PhD Scholar, School of Criminology and Criminal Justice, Griffith University
Stalking: Times, Locations and Invasion of Personal Space

Dr Lena Stadler, School of Criminology and Criminal Justice, Griffith University
The impact of parental ex-partner stalking on children: Qualitative insight from professionals and victims

Carleen Thompson, School of Criminology and Criminal Justice, Griffith University
An Integrated Theory of Stalking Violence

Dr Michele Pathé, Forensic Mental Health Service, Queensland Health
Assessing Risk in Stalking

Wednesday 18 November 2009
1:30pm - 4:30pm

Social Sciences Building (M10), Level 5, Room 5.01,
Mt Gravatt Campus, Griffith University

Afternoon Tea provided.
Free Seminar. RSVP required for catering purposes.
Email: kceljag-events@griffith.edu.au or Phone: 3735 5997
by Friday 13 November.
Please advise if you require parking information.

Further information visit www.griffith.edu.au/kceljag

The violence research and prevention program is a cross university, interdisciplinary research program that examines the causes, and consequences, of violence and various strategies for its prevention.