“So, what does gender at work look like?”

Call for papers

Confirmed speaker:

Professor Judith Pringle
Auckland University of Technology, and Centre for Work, Organisation and Wellbeing.

Abstract: The shape and detail of gender at work is complex and varied. In this seminar we are seeking to explore the contours of women’s and men’s work through their experiences, and occupational and organisational structures and practices. Papers dealing with work in both Australia and overseas are invited.

We additionally invite fully developed or developmental papers on this topic, and welcome papers from PhD students. The aim of the day is to promote discussion among scholars and practitioners who are interested in workplace and gender issues.

If you are interested in presenting, please send a short abstract to workshop Chair, Dr Kaye Broadbent by Monday 6th May 2013: k.broadbent@griffith.edu.au.
