Information Systems and Recordkeeping

Griffith University continues to be compliant with the principles underpinning both Information Standard 40: Recordkeeping and Information Standard 31: Retention and Disposal of Public Records (IS31).

Information Standard 40: Recordkeeping

Principle 1: Public authority recordkeeping must be compliant and accountable

The University has:

- » a Queensland State Archives (QSA) approved Strategic Recordkeeping Implementation Plan
- » a Business Classification Scheme (BCS) based on two QSA approved retention and disposal schedules fully implemented within the University's records management system
- » an ongoing role in the review of the University Sector Retention and Disposal Schedule
- » a student records system and digitisation process compliant with QSA's Digitisation Disposal Policy, including adoption of the University's Destruction of Digitised Records Policy and approval of the Compliance Declaration for the digitisation of student records.

Principle 2: Recordkeeping must be monitored and audited for compliance

The University has:

- » a documented audit plan for conducting file audits on a routine basis
- » the Internal Audit Unit monitoring compliance with the University's recordkeeping obligations and implementation of internal audit recommendations
- » a scheduled review cycle for systematically evaluating organisational units and their business processes.

Principle 3: Recordkeeping activity must be assigned and implemented

The University has:

- » a records management unit, Corporate Archives & Records Management Services (CARMS)
- » a program of short courses on Good Record Keeping delivered routinely across all campuses
- » a range of publicly accessible web resources including the BCS, business processes, support for archiving and destruction processes.

Principle 4: Recordkeeping must be managed

The University's Electronic & Document Records Management System (EDRMS), TRIM:

- » facilitates the viewing of electronic records by high volume users from their desktop
- » enables select users to save born-digital records to TRIM, supported by documented business processes
- » captures digitised vital records holdings in preparation for the development of a Recordkeeping Disaster Recovery Plan.

Principle 5: Recordkeeping systems must be reliable and secure

The University actively manages the life cycle of its corporate files using TRIM.

Principle 6: Recordkeeping must be systematic and comprehensive

The University centrally captures and maintains records for identified business activities in the EDRMS managed by CARMS and undertakes disposal in accordance with QSA approved Retention and Disposal Schedules.

Principle 7: Full and accurate records must be made and kept for as long as they are required for business, legislative, accountability and cultural purposes

The University's BCS based on two QSA approved retention and disposal schedules is updated after a QSA review of either of these schedules. All metadata captured into TRIM is compliant with the minimum mandatory requirements of the Queensland Recordkeeping Metadata Standard and Guideline.

Information Standard 31: Retention and Disposal of Public Records (IS31)

Principle 1: Public authorities must ensure public records are retained for as long as they are required

The University is involved in the ongoing review of the University Sector Retention & Disposal Schedule (QDAN601). In 2008, CARMS commenced the appraisal of its off-site records archive with this work expected to continue to 2015.

Principle 2: The disposal of public records must be authorised by the State Archivist

CARMS has documented records disposal procedures and provides support to the University's organisational elements in the appropriate disposal of records.
