- Once you start studying at Griffith the scholarship will be applied prior to the census date of each trimester on meeting the ongoing enrolment requirements (see below). You must pay the remaining balance of fees, based on your enrolment, by census date.
- To maintain the scholarship deduction you must pass all courses and be enrolled full-time in your program and making progress in your studies that meets your student visa requirements, unless credit prevents full-time enrolment.

Terms and conditions

- Griffith University academic and English language entry requirements apply, including results of previous study and English language proficiency.
- Scholarship applies to tuition fees only for students commencing in 2022 or 2023. Students who defer commencement to 2024 or later are not eligible to receive the scholarship.
- The scholarship covers 20% of undergraduate or postgraduate coursework tuition fees only for the 'Duration' of the program on meeting the ongoing enrolment requirements (see below). The duration is defined as the 'Program Length' of the first degree program as stated in your Letter of Offer, less any credit received for previous study. Each deduction will be applied by the census date of each relevant trimester of the program.
- If a student is awarded a Griffith University scholarship that is worth more than 20% of tuition fees, the scholarship at the higher value will apply rather than this scholarship.
